He was ill when he reached home that evening and developed double pneumonia. He was admitted to the hospital on Sunday. Complications were the direct cause of death.

FINNS AND REDS FIGHT 12 MILES FROM VIIPURI

(By the Associated Press)

Fresh Finnish successes were reported today on the Mannerheim line where a February blizzard slowed the pace of Russian-Finnish warfare.

A Finnish communique declared 2,000 Russians had been killed near Taipale, the defense line's eastern sector, but acknowledged fighting had reached the Kamaia railway station, 12 miles southeast of Viipuri.

A large number of tanks and 13 planes were counted as Russian losses by the Finns.

The United States and Britain were deadlocked today in a dispute over censorship of American mail, an issue which troubled relations between the two powers during the World war.

Disclosure that British marines, with fixed bayonets, had seized trans-Atlantic mail from a Pan-American clipper at Bermuda cast new light on Britain's censorship activities which have brought prompt protest from the State department.

Britains Defend Censorship

Interception and delay of American mail has continued, however, particularly at Gibraltar, one of Britain's main contraband control points.

The British ministry of economic warfare called the Bermuda censorship "absolutely necessary" to Britain's campaign for strangling Germany's economic and financial life, arguing that cessation would inspire a flood of currency and other supplies by mail to the Reich.

On the war front the British air ministry announced two German warplanes had been shot down off the northeast coasts, the second time in three days that nazi aircraft have appeared off the British isles.

Beleaguered Finland called two more military classes—men 44 to 46 years of age—for duty in face of the Russian invasion.

A blizzard slowed the pace of the Russian-Finnish conflict, aiding the Finns to combat Red army tactics of spreading battle action over wide areas to take advantage of their superiority in numbers.

Weather Aids Finns

After a sharp drive against the Mannerheim line's western end, that brought them close to Viipuri, the Russians turned to the line's eastern end with attacks which the Finns announced had been repulsed near Taipale.

Driving snow and cold, normal February weather in Finland, gave the Finnish forces new hope they could stall the Red army.

A Soviet communique said 176 Finnish forts had been captured in

2 Patrolmen Here Are Transferred

Private Donald Harris, of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police, has been notified of his transfer to the McConnellsburg substation on March 1. Officer Harris has been stationed here since May, 1938.

The same orders gave notice of the transfer of Officer Glen P. Henry from the Gettysburg substation to York, effective when Private Henry completes a "refresher course" he is taking now at the Hershey training school.

Their places here will be filled by the transfers of Private John Micka from McConnellsburg and Private William L. Ramsey from York.

To Remove Staple From Girl's Lung

Philadelphia, Feb. 22 (AP)—A frail, 16-year-old Tennessee girl is in Graduate hospital here for removal from her lungs of a staple she swallowed six years ago and "forgot."

Dorothy Mae Dockins, of Knoxville, was mystified when she became ill recently and was seized with severe coughing attacks. X-ray examination showed the staple embedded in one lung, and she remembered swallowing it when she was a child of ten.

CAMP NAWAKWA WILL OPEN 12TH YEAR ON JUNE 17

Camp Nawakwa, Lutheran leadership training camp in the South mountains which is sponsored by the parish and church school board of the United Lutheran church of America, will open for its twelfth consecutive year on June 17.

Last year 1,016 boys and girls above the age of 10 years attended sessions of the camp conducted on the 100-acre grounds near Brysonia, 13 miles north of Gettysburg.

Junior and intermediate boys will be the first groups to be in camp this year. Junior boys, aged 10 and 11 years, and intermediate boys aged 12 to 14 years, will camp from June 17 to June 24.

Leadership Camp

Girls of the same age groups will occupy the camp from June 24 to July 1. A second camp for intermediate girls will be held from July 1 to 8.

Senior boys, aged 15 to 18 years, will be in camp from July 9 to 22 and senior girls of the same age group will occupy the camp from July 23 to August 5.

In connection with the camp for young people and leadership training which will extend from August 12 to August 24, there will be conducted at the same time a church workers' seminar. Members of the seminar will be entitled to all camp privileges. The laboratory school will be conducted again this year in Arendtsville to furnish an opportunity for practical experience in Christian education for the camp students.

Continue Work on Chapel

During this summer work will be continued on the Fischer memorial chapel on the camp grounds. Last summer the chapel was begun and the altar was dedicated. Bridges on approaches to the open-air chapel will be built this year and seating facilities will be provided.

The chapel is expected to be completed this year. It honors the memory of Dr. M. Hadwin Fischer, founding director of the camp, who died in 1938 after directing the observance of the camp's tenth anniversary.

The teachers are advised by the county superintendent to read and practice information contained in the education Bulletin of February 13 on "Professionalism." A list of professional bulletins on the field of education are given the teachers. The books may be secured through the superintendent's office.

The last page and a half of the bulletin is devoted to a discussion of "Methods of Teaching."

Sculptoring of Washington's Head Nearly Finished After 13 Years of Work by Borglum

Rapid City, S. D., Feb. 22 (AP)—Almost released from its chrysalis of granite, the head of George Washington at the Mount Rushmore national memorial, today—on the 208th anniversary of the first President's birth—was undergoing its final buffing under direction of sculptor Gutzon Borglum.

Gutzon Borglum was the sculptor for the North Carolina monument on the Gettysburg battlefield. He attended the dedication of the monument here.

There was no letup in the work of the huge Washington figure as the nation paused to pay tribute to the "father of his country." Human figures, tiny by comparison with the great carvings, continued to chip away with compressed air buffers at the stone still overlying the chin and upper bust of the heroic Washington, sculptured on the scale of a man 465 feet in height.

The head, 60 feet from chin to crown, was started on July 10, 1927.

To the average observer the figure was completed when, on July 4, 1930, a huge American flag was drawn aside during unveiling ceremonies. But to Borglum that was only a beginning.

"Washington," he said then, "still lies behind the granite."

During the intervening ten years deftly-directed air drills and dynamite have taken off tons of rock as the sculptor labored to give expression to the granite features, to etch in to the rock the character of the man who guided the infant republic's destinies through eight trying years.

"I deliberately carved the head in an upright position, without the slightest tilting forward or backward or to either side, to fix upon the mind of the observer the upright character of the man," Borglum said.

Today the sculptor was almost ready to say "the task is done." He expects to complete not only Washington, but the Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt heads by June of this year.

Washington Kept Record of Weather

Washington, Feb. 22 (AP).—George Washington probably wrote more words about the weather than any man who ever lived save for a weather forecaster.

His diary, which he kept for 40-odd of his 67 years, often ran through stretches of a whole week during which only notes about the weather were recorded.

Probably the last thing he ever wrote was such a notation. It was on December 13, 1799: "Morning snowing and about three inches deep. Wind at no. et., and mer. at 30 Contg. Snowing till o'clock, and abt. 4 it became perfectly clear. Wind at the same place but not hard Mer. 28 at night" . . .

The general had good reason to notice the snow that day. The previous day he had ridden out to his farms. Soon after he left Mount Vernon, it began to rain, sleet and snow. He came in after a five hour ride, wet and covered with snow.

Dinner was waiting, and he ate without changing from his wet clothes. Next morning, he complained of a sore throat and that evening, he was very hoarse. He wakened Mrs. Washington in the night and told her he was ill, but would not let her get up in the chilly house for fear that she would catch cold.

At daylight, a man was sent for a doctor. Then two others were summoned. Washington was bled, given hot applications, gargles, footbaths and then bled again. He died about 10 o'clock that night.

'Farewell Address' Read in Congress

Washington, Feb. 22 (AP).—George Washington's 144-year-old "Farewell Address," read to the house today in the traditional observance of the first President's birthday anniversary, touched on at least three topics currently before the nation—trade, foreign alliances and the third term.

The house set aside its legislative tasks for the day to hear one of its oldest republican members, Rep. Frank Crowther, of New York, read the historic document.

Public galleries were well-filled but the diplomatic gallery was vacant, although Representative Sweeney (D-Ohio) had invited Lord Lothian, the British ambassador to attend. Sweeney said that in view of the presence of British agents in this country "seeking to embroil our nation in the European war," it might be timely for the ambassador to hear Washington's views on foreign alliances.

About thirty members of the senate were on hand to hear the reading of the Washington address by Senator Burke (D-Neb).

Other congressional events not linked with the ceremony included:

Senators critical of British censorship of United States airmail at Bermuda re-inforced their protests with new demands for prohibiting American planes from landing at the British-owned isle.

Deane F. Stahmann, a New Mexico farmer, told a senate agriculture sub-committee that attempts to reduce large benefit payments under the crop control program might force sharecroppers of the deep south to go to irrigated lands of Arizona, New Mexico and California.

MAY ELIMINATE 2 R.R. CROSSINGS EAST OF G-BURG

Western Maryland railroad grade crossings on the Lincoln highway east of here at Brush Run, where five persons died in an 18-month period within the last two and a half years, and the Guldens crossing are to be eliminated if the present 1941 federal-aid program of the Pennsylvania Department of Highways is carried out.

A news release from Harrisburg today listed 13 grade crossings in the state for removal in a program that calls for the improvement of 7.53 miles of highways.

The plans for the removal of the Brush Run and Guldens crossings east of here involve the re-location of three miles of railroad as part of the work. The plan to keep the railroad tracks entirely on the north side of the highway between Gettysburg and New Oxford would eliminate four rural road grade crossings but would involve intersections with two rural roads on the north side of the highway.

Information Lacking

In addition to changing the three miles of railroad tracks .38 of a mile of the Lincoln highway is involved, the announcement said.

No mention of the cost of the contemplated improvements was made in the Harrisburg announcement. State highway officials here said they had no information on the work and George H. Hornbaker, Hagerstown, division engineer for the Western Maryland railroad, could not be reached for a statement.

Local interest in plans for the re-location of the railroad tracks between the two grade crossings was revived here a year ago when a train killed three Norristown residents at Brush Run crossing during a sleet storm the afternoon of March 11 last year. The preceding December, Richard Mumma, of Gettysburg, was killed instantly when his car was hit at the same crossing. Late in 1937, a York coal trucker was fatally injured in another accident there.

After a triple tragedy last March the Public Utilities commission at Harrisburg sent investigators here to learn what special hazards existed at the Brush Run crossing and hope of the elimination of the crossings was revived.

Right of Way Surveyed

Several years ago a right of way for the railroad tracks north of the highway was surveyed and the proposed route was staked off. Some of the stakes remain in place. Whether that is the route being considered for the 1941 building program could not be learned.

It was learned that elimination of the grade crossings in New Oxford also has been considered but the 1941 plans make no mention of that intersection.

It was understood here that the cost of the re-location of the railroad tracks between Guldens and Brush Run had balked previous proposals to remove the crossings as Lincoln highway traffic hazards.

Mrs. John Sherrill, Littlestown, has been admitted as a patient.

RECREATIONAL PROGRAM LISTED FOR FAIRFIELD

Plans for the inauguration of a full-time recreational program at the community building are to be carried out soon with the assistance of the state recreation division of the W.P.A., it was disclosed today by members of the board of directors of the Fairfield Civic group that planned and directed the erection of the community building last year with volunteer labor, materials and funds.

At the last meeting of the civic group this week, the Fairfield residents conferred with C. R. Hartman, regional director for the recreation division, on a program for school boys and girls, young people above school age and for adults.

Carnival To Be Held

It is expected that soon two or three members of Mr. Hartman's staff will be assigned to duty at the Fairfield community building. As soon as those assignments are made the recreation program will be placed in operation.

The building already is being used for community meetings, P.-T. A. meetings and for high school and Fairfield independent basketball games.

At the meeting this week the civic group also advanced plans for a carnival to be held at the community building on March 28, 29 and 30. Suppers will be served in the basement of the building and there will be dancing in the auditorium on the first floor.

Fairfield Officers

The Rev. A. W. Geigley is president of the Fairfield Civic group. J. Warren Martin is the secretary and Frank Yoder is treasurer. Those men have served in those offices since the group was organized in the spring of 1939 after a report on a rural church conference furnished the idea for the erection of a community building at the group project.

The group's need of a charter was met and a charter was secured through the county courts last year with these charter members serving as the first board of directors: The Rev. Mr. Geigley, Mr. Martin and Mr. Yoder, George W. Naugle, the Rev. Paul Gleringer, C. A. Wills, Miss Alma Henry, Ralph B. Hoover and E. H. Newman.

Membership in that board remains the same today with three exceptions. The Rev. Fr. Gleringer has been replaced by the Rev. Nevin Frantz; C. A. Wills by B. E. Benner, and Ralph Hoover by Dr. Ira Henderson.

Donations Received

The community building was erected on grounds bought from the Fairfield school district. Materials and labor and much of the capital needed for the one-story cinder block structure which is now nearly complete were donated and the board financed the remaining cost of the structure.

The building measures 67 x 86 feet and has a finished basement that includes locker rooms with showers, storage rooms, a dining room with a capacity of 200 and a kitchen. An auditorium with a seating capacity of 600, a stage and dressing rooms are on the first floor. The hardwood floor auditorium floor is said to be the largest basketball floor in the county, with the exception of Gettysburg. It has a 20-foot ceiling.

After work is completed on the building plans are to be made for its dedication later this year.

SAVES 5 KIN

Philadelphia, Feb. 22 (AP) — A "thumping noise" awoke Anthony Cedrone today and probably saved the lives of his mother and four sisters. Investigating the noise, Cedrone, 25, found his 49-year-old mother and two of his sisters unconscious in a bathroom — overcome by coal gas. In other rooms, also unconscious, were two other sisters. Cedrone summoned aid and all were revived.

WIER GETS G. O. P. JOB

Washington, Feb. 22 (AP)—Chairman John Hamilton of the republican national committee announced today the appointment of Ernest T. Wier, the Pittsburgh steel man, as chairman of the party's finance committee.

The Warner hospital auxiliary will hold its February meeting at the Nurses' home Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

TWO FRATERNITY HOUSES ROBBED OF $50 IN CASH

Approximately $50 in cash was taken from two Gettysburg college fraternity houses by a thief or thieves who ignored several hundred dollars in endorsed negotiable checks, watches and other cash. The thefts were discovered this morning about 7 o'clock and a report was made immediately to police who have begun investigations.

Chief of Police Glenn Guise said that about $20 in cash was taken from the Sigma Chi house on Carlisle street and between $20 and $25 from the Phi Kappa Psi house near Glatfelter hall on the campus.

Money in Clothing

In both instances, the officer said, the money was removed from pockets in students' clothing left on the second floor while the owners slept on the floor above. A till was broken open in the Sigma Chi house.

It was not necessary for the thief to break into either house. The front door of the Sigma Chi house was locked but the back door was open. At the other fraternity house the front door was open.

The fact that the thief left $20 or more in one pocketbook while he removed a few dollar bills from another puzzled police. At both houses other valuables besides cash and the checks were rejected by the thief, although they were easily accessible and probably were inspected by him.

Other Similar Robberies

The time of the thefts was placed tentatively as having been between midnight and 7 o'clock this morning. Both of the houses have been robbed in a similar manner during the last few years, as have several other of the fraternity buildings.

Police said there is probably no connection between the fraternity house robberies here and the theft of more than $200 in fountain pens, typewriters, golf clubs, stamps and other articles from a Penn Hall dormitory at Chambersburg on Tuesday night.

LODGE PLANS TO MARK 10TH YEAR

Officers for the next six months were nominated at a regular meeting of the Union Encampment of the I. O. O. F. of Gettysburg on Wednesday evening and a committee was named to arrange for observance of the tenth anniversary of the re-organization of the encampment.

The encampment was re-organized on April 18, 1930, with the grand patriarch and other grand officers in Gettysburg for the occasion. The committee includes: S. G. Sollenberger, J. E. Snyder, W. L. Meals, H. T. Stauffer and C. N. Coshun.

The semi-annual election of officers will be held March 6. These men have been nominated: Chief patriarch, S. G. Sollenberger; high priest, George N. Coshun; senior warden, Alexis Chritzman; junior warden, Paul Snyder, and trustee, Merle Rudisill.

2 Cars Collide At Abbottstown

A state car operated by G. Carper Bachman, 48, Lebanon, an employe of the Auditor General's department, figured in a collision Wednesday evening about 5 o'clock at the eastern end of Abbottstown with a machine driven by Winnamore Dull, 18, West Chestnut street, Hanover. No one was injured in the collision.

The investigation of the mishap was conducted by Officer C. W. Hamberger, of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police. He learned that both machines had been traveling east when Dull drove to the center lane of the highway and attempted a left turn onto the country club road. The right front of the state car collided with the left side of the Hanover machine.

Both cars were able to leave the scene under their own power. No charges have been laid by the investigating officer.

Schoolmen's Club to Meet With York Group

The February meeting of the Adams County Schoolmen's club, formerly the county high school principals' association, was omitted Wednesday evening because of a joint session planned for next Tuesday evening with the York County High School Principal's association at the West York high school.

Mrs. Anna G. Green, chief of the home economics education division, and V. A. Martin, adviser of the agricultural education division of instruction of the state Department of Public Instruction, will be the speakers at the union session in York.

the last three days, but that little of importance had developed in last 24 hours of fighting.

Aroused by a Soviet air raid on the frontier village of Papala, Wednesday, Swedish gunners were ordered to fire on any foreign planes which make incursions into Swedish territory.

Stockholm newspapers demanded that Russia, already the recipient of a Swedish protest, be asked compensation for the attack which fired numerous buildings but left the populace unharmed.

Germany reported her planes had made scouting flights over eastern France and the French said three German land patrol attacks on the western front had been repulsed.

"Financial mastery" of the war was claimed by Finance Minister Paul Raynaud, of France in a speech reporting steadily growing subscriptions for French armament bonds and that French gold resources are being kept virtually intact.

European war echoes sounded on India's remote northwest frontier where British troops started a new campaign against tribesmen while rumors were heard of possible Soviet pressure through adjoining Afghanistan.

"Our casualties were light," said a British army announcement following fresh fighting in the region which Britain never has subdued completely despite numerous punitive expeditions.

(Detailed stories of some of the developments in Europe mentioned above appear elsewhere in today's Gettysburg Times.)

State Fighting Luzerne Outbreak of Meningitis Cases

Philadelphia, Feb. 22 (AP)—Dr. John J. Shaw, state secretary of Health, described the spinal meningitis situation in Luzerne county today as "uncomfortable" but not of epidemic proportions.

At the same time he reported two new cases of the disease—a total of 57 since the first of the year—but expressed hope that the spread of meningitis could be brought under control in the county within two weeks.

"When I say that the disease is not yet epidemic, I mean for the size of the community affected," Doctor Shaw said. "I am not minimizing the seriousness of the situation.

"There are too many cases there for any community. There have been 18 deaths. That is above normal. But there is no cause for serious alarm."

Doctor Shaw said the state Health department is in touch with the meningitis situation in Luzerne county "every hour" and is doing everything possible to check the disease. Six or eight extra nurses are on duty in the Kirby health center, Wilkes-Barre, he said, and extra doctors were sent there today.

"Getting this thing under control is a matter of long drawn out leg work," the Health secretary added. "However, there are signs of an abatement and, given a break, we hope to have it under control within two weeks."

Britain Expects to Re-Open Fair Building

London, Feb. 22 (AP) — Great Britain today announced a conditional decision to re-open the British pavilion at the New York World's fair this year.

Answering a question in the house of commons, R. S. Hudson, parliamentary secretary for overseas trade, said:

"Certain financial arrangements have been suggested by the fair authorities toward covering the cost, and, subject to a satisfactory settlement of outstanding details, it has been decided to re-open the pavilion."

WHERE PUTTING ON DOG REALLY COSTS SOMETHING

Vaduz, Leichtenstein, (AP)—The little postage-stamp principality of Leichtenstein, between Switzerland and Austrian Germany, has lower taxes than almost every other country in Europe, save on one thing—dogs.

Leichtenstein's 7,000 cows and 3,000 pigs are the main source of income to the country's 10,000 inhabitants. Cows don't like dogs and pigs can get along without them, too. Farmers figure the fewer dogs the better. Hence the high taxes on "man's best friend."

ABC's COME IN FOR SOME CRITICISM

Waco, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Iva Cox Gardner of the Baylor University psychology department thinks public schools teach English courses "backward."

Students are taught the language by writing but she says the greatest use to which they put it is in speech.

"The same accusation applies to the oral teaching of spelling," she adds. "Although the only time one has occasion to spell is in writing, most spelling lessons are given orally."

BRITISH QUELL TRIBESMEN IN INDIA DISTRICT

New Delhi, India, Feb. 22 (AP).—Bloody combat broke out today on the troubled northwest frontier as British military forces moved into that jagged land of ambuscade and adventure to clean out marauding tribesmen and perhaps to meet again their old and elusive foe, the Fakir of Ipi.

"Our casualties were light," said a military communique. "The second of two columns encountered considerable opposition from tribesmen concealed in caves on either side of the Tangai valley."

Aided by artillery and two companies of Gurkha rifles (native troops), "we eventually seized the caves," it said.

The newest of nearly a century of campaigns to pacify and subdue the wild mountain men was linked here with rumors of possible Soviet Russian incursions through Afghanistan—and a Britain at war in Europe intends to take no unnecessary chances.

Particularly designated for a cleanup is the Ahmadzai salient, flanking the famous—and vital—Khyber pass.

Have Strongholds

In that region, Mehr Dil and two other native leaders under the influence of the doughty old Fakir are reported to have strongholds from which they can launch looting raids into the Bannu and Kohat districts of north Waziristan.

Such raids lately have been adding fresh disruptions to the always rather disturbed life of the frontier.

Circle in New Delhi label the quarry as scattered killers and kidnapers, of relatively small importance in the general wartime panorama, but nevertheless a part of it.

The grand old man of the truculent tribesmen is the Fakir of Ipi, who for more than 30 years has flouted and fought the British.

A giant figure in baggy trousers and a flowing robe, with beard and hair dyed red when he goes into battle, the Fakir is a champion of Islam. Religion is his generally accepted motive, but the British often have suspected him of heeding Russian influences. He is a good man with a rifle, a daring horsemen, and a clever arranger of traps, on the testimony of his pursuers.

In addition to the usual raids and ambushes, he is blamed for planting crude bombs on British parade grounds, connecting telephone circuits with electric power lines, and poisoning wells.

The son of a caravan driver, he was a humble coolie named Migra Ali Khan in the bazaars of Peshawar in his youth. Incensed over a court decision which favored Hindus over a Moslem, he became a religious leader and was a power among the tribes by the time he was 21.

Since then he has led the British a bloody chase.

STEAM ENGINE BOOSTER

Philadelphia, Feb. 22 (AP)—The American steam locomotive is here to stay for at least 30 years, Lawford H. Fry, Pittsburgh railway engineer told the Franklin Institute Wednesday night. He predicted the steam engine would survive despite competition from electric and Diesel locomotives.

Mother and Three Children Cross Ocean as Stowaways

New York, Feb. 22 (AP)—Even case-hardened immigration men were a little awed today at the feat of Mrs. Margaret De La Rosa Madden Alvarez, 36, of Philadelphia, American-born wife of a Spaniard, who stowed away with her three children—one a baby in arms—on the Italian liner Vulcania.

Voluntarily surrendering after eluding detection throughout the seven-day voyage from Lisbon, Portugal, Mrs. Alvarez achieved what immigration officials described as a "new high in slowing away."

And Italian line officials were so touched by her courage that they not only waived any thought of action against the mother for the family's $400 free ride, but paid their train fair to Philadelphia.

Ship's officers admitted they were dumbfounded when Mrs. Alvarez gave herself up to the chaplain, Mgr. Luigi Ridolfi, shortly before the liner entered quarantine, and calmly informed him:

"I am here secretly with my children."

The family had hidden in a tiny third-class cabin occupied by Mrs. Rosa Cienfuentes, a Spanish citizen, and her two small children.

The seven persons slept on the two beds and the floor, the stowaways ordering food brought to the cabin door by unsuspecting stewards or by sending the oldest of Alvarez children, six-year-old Maria, to the dining room, where she ate and then returned with her pockets bulging with food for her mother and the other two Alvarez children, Carlo, 2½ years old, and the baby, Margherita, five months.

Mrs. Cienfuentes told line officials that the stowaway family approached her when the Vulcania was a day out of Lisbon and told her of their plight.

"I was a little seasick and I was glad to have her with me," the hostess said simply.

It was a perfectly satisfactory explanation for company officials, who merely remarked that the Spanish always were a hospitable people and that the whole thing, while a little "unusual," had worked out happily.

Councilman Surprised To Find 3 Pittsburgh Officers at Waikiki

Pittsburg, Feb. 22 (AP)—Pleased and surprised to find three Pittsburgh policemen frolicking on the beach at Waikiki, enjoying a vacation like himself, Councilman George Evans wrote friends back home of the incident.

The story rated a columnist's mention, and Raymond Geary, chief of the payroll division in the controller's office, read it. Then he wondered what the policemen were doing on the island of hula girls and leis when he had assumed they were guarding downtown street corners.

It developed that the patrolmen had 19 days' overtime coming for 1939, so they added those days to their regular vacations and set out for Honolulu. But the catch is that they can't take overtime for 1939 in 1940.

The happy officers don't know it yet, but when they get back home the'll find they're out just 19 days' pay.

SPIRITUALIST 'REVEALS' OLD TREASURE

San Diego, Calif. (AP)—A public exhibition of old metal crosses has directed attention to a mystery of spiritualism and buried treasure of the California mountains.

The objects were dug up between 1914 and 1934 at various locations between San Luis Rey and Bakersfield at locations specified by a Mrs. Parent, now dead.

Mrs. Parent claimed clairvoyant powers and directed neighbors to more than 100 locations where she said buried treasure existed.

The search attracted the attention of the writer Hamlin Garland, who made an investigation. He says that participants related finding gold coins and currency valued at about $10,000 in addition to values in silver in the crosses themselves.

Though one expert says the crosses are of modern manufacture, others see them as relics dating back hundreds of years.

HARD-FISTED ABOUT THEIR WOOD SUPPLY

Zurich, Switzerland, (AP)—There's a lot of timber decorating the sides of Swiss Alps, but the Swiss plan to hang on to it as they never have before during the war years.

Paper pulp and other wood products are running short in warring Europe—particularly since Russia and Finland are busily warring.

Consequently the Swiss Wood Syndicate, acting on the decree of the Swiss War Economy Office, has decided that export permits for wood are to be issued in special cases.

Most of Switzerland's wood production—for many months to come—will be stored for Swiss consumption.

Oysters ranked first in American shell-fisheries in 1939. The take was 95,627,000 pounds valued at more than $8,000,000.

ANIMALS INFECT MAN, AND VICE VERSA

Oklahoma City, (AP)—It isn't always the human beings who suffer when dogs and people live in the same household.

Dr. H. C. Smith of Fort Dodge, Ia., studying the relationship between animal and human infections, has found that sometimes human beings give dogs an itch.

Many diseases can't be transmitted between human beings and animals, but others may be. Most common among transmittable diseases is ringworm, Dr. Smith told the Oklahoma Veterinary Medical association.

UNCLE SAM SUES FOR TROPICAL PARADISE

Honolulu (AP) — The Federal government has filed suit for possession of the Palmyra Islands, a group of 54 tropical atolls which have been described as a movie director's dream.

Defending ownership of the group are Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pullard-Leo, who bought them for about $10,000 in 1922.

The navy wants the islands to establish a $1,100,000 naval base, and contends that the government is owner of the group in absolute fee. The Hawaii Land Court has recognized the Pullard-Leos' title and the latter have been paying taxes of about $80 a year.

Because of their wild tropic beauty the Palmyras have achieved some celebrity, though they are far off regular steamer routes. The Pullard-Leos have turned down offers from a nudist colony and from a gambling casino promoter.

ADVICE TO SENIORS

State College, Pa., Feb. 22 (AP)—E. G. Bailey, president of Babcock and Wilcox company, New York, advised engineering seniors of the Pennsylvania State college to "pick their own jobs," instead of "letting the jobs pick you." He said in a lecture that the job "you accept will be 100 per cent important to you, while your importance to the company, as one of many employes, will be just a fraction of one per cent."

Maroons Seek Second Place; Meet Carlisle Here Friday

Gettysburg high's high-flying basketball team will continue its battle for a possible second-place position in the Southern Pennsylvania interscholastic league Friday evening when it meets Carlisle high here.

While the onrushing Maroons will be favorites in Friday's tilt a stiff battle can be expected from Coach "Dutch" Eby's lads. In Trimmer, brother of the Gettysburg college center, Carlisle has one of the top scorers in the loop and if he has an "on" night a close scrap is assured. Trimmer has scored 109 points in league competition.

Three league tussles remain on the Maroons' schedule and a clean sweep would assure them of at least a tie for the runner-up position. Following Friday's game the Maroons meet Shippensburg on the latter's court next Tuesday and then close their season by engaging Mechanicsburg here March 1. The Mechanicsburg game was postponed from last Thursday due to the snowstorm.

Probable lineups for the game follow: Carlisle—Trimmer and Bressler, forwards; Prescott, center; Sprow and Zeigler, guards; Gettysburg—Hartman and Shields, forwards; Bucher, center, and Sachs and Myers, guards.

A preliminary game between the reserve teams will start at 7 o'clock.

Prof. Guile W. Lefever, faculty manager, announced today that the game with the Maryland School for Deaf, at Frederick, has been cancelled. The teams will clash in Frederick next season.

Bauers to 'Test' Arm With Pirates

Pittsburgh, Feb. 22 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates announced today that Pitcher Russ Bauers, as yet unsigned for 1940, will train with the team at San Bernardino, California, to "test" whether he has gotten rid of pitching arm "trouble."

The 24-year-old right-hander hurt his arm last season, and as a result pitched only one complete game in eight starts. He wound up with a record of two victories and four defeats for all 15 games in which he played.

Bauers, who has been with the club three years, wrote from his home at Lakewood, Wisconsin, that he wants to convince himself "decisively" his arm is "fully recovered" before "going through another season like that of 1939." A recent examination showed no "trace of injury or abnormal condition," he said.

"In view of the circumstances that makes the case of Bauers different from that of a holdout, Manager Frank Frisch decided to waive his rule against taking unsigned players to camp," the club announced.

Bauers, one of the Pirates' 14 hurlers, was notified to join the club's advance guard at Chicago Saturday night and accompany them to San Bernardino for the "desired test."

Frisch, who is leaving for Chicago tonight, said that in training he will stress the half-forgotten art of bunting and how to slide into base without getting hurt.

REASON FOR WAR

London, Feb. 22 (AP)—G. A. Gripenberg, Finnish minister to Britain, said in an address here today that destruction of the Mannerheim line was included among the Russian demands refusal of which brought on the present Finnish-Russian war. Finland, Gripenberg told a luncheon audience, agreed to far-reaching Russian demands in an effort to preserve peace, but refused to make concessions equivalent to a surrender of her freedom.

SEEK REFUND OF ROAD COSTS

Harrisburg, Feb. 22 (AP).—Efforts of two Cumberland county hamlets to get back approximately $6,000 they spent on roads now part of the state highway system raises the threat that other communities may make claims aggregating "millions of dollars," says State Treasurer F. Clair Ross.

Ross said he and Auditor General Warren R. Roberts and Attorney General Claude T. Reno held a hearing on the petitions of the boroughs of Wormleysburg and West Fairview but would have no decision for about a month.

The communities acted under a 1927 law providing that any moneys credited in the state treasury for use of the Highways department are to be returned if they "ought in equity and good faith" be refunded.

"The case is unique in that while the two communities that maintained the roads received the benefits of improvements, they contend that since the roads have been absorbed into the state highways system, they are technically entitled to retroactive reimbursement for the improvements," Ross commented.

Collegiate Grapplers To Meet in Allentown

Allentown, Pa., Feb. 22.—This city will be the scene of the annual championship meet of the Middle Atlantic State Collegiate Wrestling association on Friday and Saturday, March 1 and 2, when Muhlenberg college will play host to the collegiate matmen of six institutions.

LINCOLN QUINT LOSES AT N. O.

The Lincoln school basketball team dropped an extra period game at New Oxford Wednesday afternoon, 15-14.

Both teams played close guarding games throughout. New Oxford got off to a 6-0 lead in the first period and led 8-2 at half time. Coach Ulrich's team rallied in the third period to tie the score and at the end of the regulation game the score stood 14-14. A foul toss in the extra period gave New Oxford victory.

Lincoln school outshot their opponents from the floor, six goals to four.

WAR BRIEFS

Paris, Feb. 22 (AP) — French machine-gunners drove off three German raids with enemy losses, military sources reported today, during renewed patrol activity on the western front. In the sector east of the Moselle river, they said, German troops attempting to capture a French outpost were repulsed by French crossfire and retired in disorder.

Athens, Greece, Feb. 22 (AP).—Compulsory air raid drills were ordered by police today for all inhabitants of the Athens district. They will start Saturday and continue daily for two weeks with two hours devoted to drilling each day.

Stockholm, Feb. 22 (AP).—The newspaper Aftonbladet reported that Admiral Nikolai Kuznetzoff, Soviet commissar of naval affairs, flew from Moscow to Murmansk today following reports that British war vessels were cruising in the Petsamo vicinity off Finland's Arctic shore.

London, Feb. 22 (AP).—The air ministry announced that two German warplanes had been shot down by British fighters today, one off the northeast coast and the other near St. Abb's Head, Scotland.

NO PLANS TO WED

Washington, Feb. 22 (AP)—James Roosevelt, the President's eldest son, declared today that he had "no plans at all" to marry Miss Romelle Schneider, who was his nurse at the Mayo brothers clinic in Rochester, Minnesota, last year. Young Roosevelt recently filed suit for divorce and his wife, Betsey Cushing Roosevelt, filed counter-suit. Both charged desertion. Roosevelt said he planned to remain a bachelor and "stick to producing pictures," beginning with a production of "The But" about April 15.

WHAT'S THAT, AGAIN?

Meadville, Pa., Feb. 22 (AP)—A pedestrian captured a youth who attempted to rob a merchant, then found to his surprise the youth was armed. Larry Fessler said that while he thought the merchant cried the youth had a "garment," the merchant actually said he had a "gun." "Had I understood correctly," Fessler said frankly, "I would have thought several times before giving chase."

DAHL ONE OF 8 RELEASED FROM SPANISH PRISON

Madrid, Feb. 22 (AP) — The United States embassy announced today that the last eight American citizens held as Spanish Civil war prisoners, including Harold E. Dahl, Champaign, Illinois, flier, had been released and would start soon for home.

Dahl and two of the Americans, Clarence Alvie Blair, of Red Granite, Wisconsin, and Colin Haber, of New York city, already are at Seville. They are to sail for New York aboard the Exiria, Friday.

Dahl is a native of Sidney, Illinois. His mother, Mrs. C. W. Harmison, lives in Urbana, Illinois. Blair was born in little Falls, Wisconsin, and his mother, Mrs. J. A. Blair, lives at Red Granite, Wisconsin. Colin is the son of Nathan Haber, New York city.

Due at Seville today and also scheduled to sail on the Exiria were Lawrence Fant Doran, born in Los Angeles, whose wife lives in Southgate, California; Anthony Peter Kehrlicker, a native of Polk county, Iowa, and Rudolph Opara, a native of Cleveland.

Orders also were given for the release of Alf Abdreasen, born in Bergen, Norway, and a naturalized American, and Conrad Stojewa, believed to be a Californian. It was unknown here, however, whether they would be able to reach Seville in time to sail on the Exiria.

The release of these last prisoners who had fought for the defeated republican government brought to an end a long diplomatic tussle in which the United States State department had sought their freedom.

Dahl, who had been in custody since he parachuted to earth behind Nationalist Generalissimo Franco's lines on July 12, 1937, became the most widely-known American prisoner of the Spanish war as a result of his attractive blond wife's efforts to have him freed.

Dahl originally was marked for execution, but he was spared from this penalty after Mrs. Dahl, a singer, sent a letter to Gen. Franco asking clemency. She enclosed a photograph of herself.

The flier, however, remained a prisoner, most of the time in the Salamanca provincial hospital, where he was said to have been given privileges and a considerable degree of freedom. Meanwhile the American State department kept hammering for his release.

Mrs. Dahl returned to the United States alone last November and only last January 8 won a new promise of help from the State department in Washington. At that time Dahl was reported to be in fairly good health despite his long confinement

RAID REMINDS SCANDINAVIANS OF RED THREAT

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

Whatever may be Moscow's explanation of the Russian bombing of the Swedish village of Pajala, the Scandinavian public reaction is bound to be the same—that this is a grim warning to Sweden and Norway to keep hands off the Red invasion of Finland.

One would not expect, however, that this terrible incident would have a restraining influence on the average citizen of either Sweden or Norway. Indeed it is quite likely to have just the opposite effect on these proud peoples.

There could be no more convincing reminder that if the Bolshevists conquer the Finns—as will happen unless the latter get aid quickly—the Muscovites will to all intents be next-door neighbors to the Swedes and Norwegians. This is a contingency which gives the two Scandinavian states nightmares.

Must Decide Course

From the standpoint of the Swedish government the bombing is a real misfortune since it comes at a moment when public opinion is divided and inflamed over the question of whether the country should abandon its neutrality and go to the aid of the Finns.

In the long run this may be the thing which will draw Sweden and Norway into the Russo-Finnish war as partners with the Anglo-French allies. It is difficult to see, whatever way you figure it, how they can avoid taking a hand in this conflict sooner or later.

Both Sweden and Norway have made it clear that they regard their security as menaced by communist Russia. Their whole inclination is to rush to the aid of their neighbor and sweep the red flood back behind its own banks once more.

The reason they haven't done this is because of nazi threats to take action against them if they abandon neutrality. Sweden even has felt compelled to refuse the allies permission to send organized military forces across the country to the rescue of the Finns.

But if Finland loses ultimately because of lack of aid, Sweden and Norway will have to fight Russia anyway, if their fears of Soviet ambitions are well founded

Now or Later

Therefore the Scandinavian countries would seem to be up against the unhappy position of having to decide whether it would be more advantageous all round to get into the fight now, or whether it is better to delay. That's precisely the problem which is agitating the Swedish public at this moment.

Should Norway and Sweden join Finland in war against Russia, this would not automatically make them allies of England and France, unless the Anglo-French pair also declared war on Russia. The first move Germany made against the Scandinavian states, however, would immediately bring them into alliance with the Anglo-French contingent

Peace Advocates Lose African Vote

Capetown, Feb. 22 (AP)—Nearly complete assembly election returns from southwest Africa indicated today a crushing defeat for the nationalist party, which has supported former Premier General J. B. M. Hertzog in his campaign to have the Union of South Africa make peace with Germany.

The party includes most of the German residents in the territory, which formerly was a German possession but which became a mandate of the union after the World war.

Cash farm income for 1939, according to the U. S. department of agriculture was $8,250,000,000, slightly more than for 1938 and slightly less than for 1937.

WASHINGTON

"Born in seventeen-thirty-two,
Died in seventeen-ninety-nine!"
Was it that way taught to you
By your teachers as by mine?
Did they ask you to recite
In your class of yesterday
To make sure you had it right,
When he came and passed away?

"Born in seventeen-thirty-two,
Died in seventeen-ninety-nine!"
And I wonder is that true?
How must mortals death define?
Can George Washington be dead,
When so many years away
Men remember what he said,
And still wonder what he'd say?

Never comes a doubt to men,
Never rises dangers new,
But we pause to wonder then
What George Washington would do.
And we find him through the years
In what is of good or ill,
In our hopes and in our fears
Very real and living still.

NICKLE MOVIES

Hollywood, Feb. 22 (AP) — One of these days you'll have nickle-in-the-slot movies with your highball or sandwich, if plans of James Roosevelt and Fred L. Mills are carried through. The President's movie-making son and the Chicago slot machine manufacturer have formed the Mills-Globe company to produce short films weekly to run in slot machines leased to cafes, drug stores, bars and other gathering places. The three-minute films will be mostly musicals.

PERSONAL EXPERIENCE

Pittsburgh, Feb. 22 (AP)—Public Works Director Frank M. Roessing, built of complaints the city was slow in removing snow from the streets, now figures that maybe the motorists were right. Starting out for a banquet, his auto stalled in a snowdrift near his home. He couldn't free it, called a taxi. "Golly I was mad," he said.

Today's Talk

LETTERS TO ONESELF

IF I had my life to live over I believe I would keep a diary. When I read the diaries of Hawthorne, Emerson, Arnold Bennett, and the one by proxy of Boswell of Dr Johnson, all the more I wish that I had formed this good habit.

If you have read the amazingly interesting book by William Lyon Phelps which he calls "Autobiography with Letters," you will see how useful it was for him to have kept a diary all his life, for his story — long as it is — contains nothing dull or uninteresting. You seem to be listening to a man tell things that happened a few moments before.

I came across this interesting statement in that wonderfully good and instructive publication called John O' London's Weekly, which I read regularly: "In keeping a diary," says one of the writers, "a man should write letters to himself as he will be in his later years, and then be his own postman."

Hawthorne's diary reveals all the morbid and cloudy side of him. He would jot down ideas and suggestions for stories and novels in single sentences. I am glad, however, that many of the novels that he thought some of these suggestions might create, were never written, for I am sure that they would have turned out much more morbid than his most famous "Scarlet Letter." You know Hawthorne, however, by reading his journal.

Montaigne wrote more self-revealingly about himself than any man who ever put his thoughts to paper. So much so that he said: "If you want to know about me, read my book." Often, as you read him in his essays, you seem to be merely listening to Montaigne talk to you through the medium of his printed page.

Dropping the diary idea, it might not be a bad idea for us all to write letters to ourselves every once in a while — and mail them! Reading them over a little later might help to place us in a better light before the world, and incidentally help to make us more kindly and charitable toward others.

Blood Runs Cold

Chapter 33

The Man In The Garage

I couldn't hear what the Sergeant said on the telephone, and while he was talking Ishi poured the coffee. I sipped it gratefully. It was warm and comfortable in the shop and I felt drowsy. Mr. Kimball took a cup of coffee from Ishi and bent over to talk to Dick. "I don't believe that Whitefield knew Joan at all well," he said in a low voice. "He can't be the man."

Dirck rubbed his forehead wearily. "It's hard to tell," he said. "The most amazing things crop up, things you wouldn't believe."

His voice made me feel shivery. Mr. Kimball and I both eyed him curiously, but neither of us said anything and the Sergeant completed his call then. He drank a cup of coffee hastily and left the shop. Tim Lathrop came over to us and took the Sergeant's chair.

"It's terrible," he said. "I can't believe it yet. Have you any idea what could have happened to Richard to make him do such a thing?" He looked at Dirck, his face miserable.

Dirck shook his head.

"I've been nearly frantic," Tim Lathrop went on. "The time since Monday evening has been like a bad dream."

Mr. Kimball bent forward. "How is your wife, Tim?"

"A little better." He hesitated. "The Sergeant talked with her this afternoon for a few minutes."

We were silent for a long moment, each one of us wondering what the Sergeant heard from Louise Lathrop.

Then Dirck rose. "We'd better get some dinner, Chris."

We went to the Knife and Fork, but it wasn't a very successful dinner. Dirck read the paper, eating little, and I attacked the wheat cakes without enthusiasm, even though we'd had no lunch. Meals at the Knife and Fork were getting too frequent to be stimulating. Finally Dirck removed his face from behind the paper and said we'd better be running along. I had nothing to run for, but he apparently had something on his mind, so he took me back to the house and stood there for a moment.

"I know what you're going to say," I said to him. "Don't let me worry you, Chris, but for God's sake be careful. Stay in your room and don't go prowling around!"

"Wrong again," he laughed. "Our friend, the Sergeant, has a man stationed in the hall to guard you, darling."

And he left without telling me where he was going.

So I decided to spend a quiet night, sitting up in a chair with all of the lights on, and the poker from the fireplace in one hand and the carving knife in the other. As long as I was with Dirck I felt very confident, but as soon as I was alone, the dimly lighted house and the oppressive quiet that weighed it didn't make me feel any too cheerful.

The red-haired Mr. Norton was stationed in the lower hall and saluted me with a bow and smile as I went upstairs. I saw with relief that from his chair he had a fine view to the door of my apartment. Nevertheless, I decided to lock myself in. Of course, there were keys at large, but one has to have faith in something. Then I fastened the windows securely and turned on every light in the whole apartment.

In a few minutes Patrick came up with a basket of wood. He looked very queer when I unlocked the door to let him in, but he built a fire and left without saying anything.

The Noise

One evening can't go on forever, thank goodness. I roamed around the apartment, tried all of the chairs, and finally curled up by the fireplace to read.

The house was very quiet, everyone seemed to be out, and I don't know when I first noticed the noise. It was a muffled, monotonous sound and it might have been going on for some time, since it wasn't particularly noticeable. Finally I sat up, realizing that whatever it was I'd been hearing it for quite a while. It seemed to be coming from the yard. I went to the window and drew the curtain, but the garden was dark and I couldn't see beyond the path by the house. There was nothing, but the noise continued, a steady hum. So I went to the door and unlocked it, expecting to call Norton from the lower hall.

As I walked to the stairway a telephone somewhere on the third floor rang shrilly. It seemed to come from an open doorway, because it was so loud. Norton rushed upstairs past me and on up to the third floor with Mr. Kimball following him wearily.

The telephone was ringing in Whitefield's apartment and he was missing. It gave me a queer feeling.

When they came back I stopped Mr. Kimball and told him about the noise I had been hearing. He came in my apartment and opened the window to listen. Then he called Norton and the three of us stood there with our heads out of the window trying to figure out what it was.

"It's a motor running somewhere," Norton said suddenly, pulling his head in. "What's in the rear of the yard—the garage?"

Mr. Kimball nodded.

Norton turned to him. "You'd better come with me," he said in a queer voice. "There's a car out there with the engine running."

Mr. Kimball raised his tired eyes to me. "How long have you been hearing it, Miss Howarth."

I shook my head. "It may have been ten minutes or half an hour, I don't know."

For a moment the two men stared at each other.

"Quick!" Norton said, and they were out of the room and down the stairs before I realized it.

From the window I could see them as they crossed the path, but in the darkness I couldn't see the garage. I stood there about five minutes, I guess, and still they didn't come back. So, slipping on my coat, I ran downstairs. Ishi was just leaving the shop and I begged him to find out what was the matter.

He seemed to be gone hours, and he came in looking shaken, but finally the shop door opened and for once he wasn't smiling. He just stared at me.

"Ishi, what is it?" I gasped.

"Miss Howarth," he said swallowing with great difficulty. "In the garage—there is a man—I believe he is dead."

Unintelligible

My throat was dry. I couldn't say a word. I sat down in a chair and thought wildly that at the rate it kept up, in another day all of us would be dead.

Ishi stood before me, showing no emotion except that his eyes were bright and fearful. He was muttering something that I couldn't understand.

I tried to be calm. "Who is the man?"

"I did not stay to see. The body was lying in the car," he said stiffly. "It is a man. That is all that I know. The detective told me to get the hell out," he added gravely. Then he looked at me, a bland, inscrutable look. "I presume you already know everything concerning it," he said, and walked through the shop to one of the rooms in the back of the house.

I stared after him stupidly. I felt as though I were dreaming. Ishi had said, "I presume you already know everything concerning it."

Concerning what? The dead man in the garage? I rubbed my forehead. It was unintelligible.

Then Norton burst into the shop and made for the telephone. And once again Sergeant Long was summoned to 19 George Street.

I crept out of the chair. "There will be another of those awful investigations," I thought.

If the Sergeant wanted me he could call. I wasn't going to be around waiting for him. So I walked unsteadily towards the doorway. Norton, who had just finished telephoning, called after me, "Do you know where Mr. Kolff is?"

My heart stopped, I tried to turn around. Could it be Dirck in the garage?

He'd left me without a word as to where he was going and he hadn't taken the car. Was it still outside of the house?

I shook my head. "Is it . . . Is it . . . ?" But before I could gasp out my question Norton had slammed the outside door of the shop and was on his way back to the garage. I wanted to look out of the window for Dirck's car, but there were policemen on the sidewalk, so I went upstairs and knocked on the door of the front apartment.

I must have been pale because Adrianne Wells, when she opened the door, looked at me queerly.

"Is there anything the matter?" she asked.

I tried to explain. And then I went to the window. Dirck's yellow roadster was still in front of the house. And my mind became perfectly clear again. With his car there it seemed unlikely that he have gone into the garage.

Adrianne Wells offered me a cigarette and I accepted it. When she lighted the match I was shocked at the change in her. She was gray and haggard from lack of sleep—or from worry. Her purple silk pajamas were very unbecoming. I kept wondering for no reason at all why she wore such a trying color.

"Where is Mary Ann?" I asked.

And the girl told me she was spending the night with the Fifty-seventh Street aunt.

"If you're lonely," I suggested, "why don't you come to my apartment? I'd be glad to have you."

She shook her head. "No thanks. I'm not lonely, or afraid."

And I believed her. There was obviously something on her mind, but it wasn't fear.

Continued tomorrow.

"MYSTERY" PIPE LINE

Emporium, Pa., Feb. 22 (AP)—A pipe constructed of hollowed eight-inch pine logs connected with iron "slip-ins" has been unearthed in this Cameron county community, but oldest residents don't know when it was laid, or for what reason. W.P.A. workers uncovered the pipe when placing a storm sewer in a street. Some residents guessed it is more than 70 years old, and may have been used to carry water from a spring, or as a swamp drainage system.

NO MORE SOLOISTS

Philadelphia, Feb. 22 (AP)—In a move to increase the flexibility of the teaching force by eliminating the "one-subject teacher," Alexander J. Stoddard, superintendent of Philadelphia schools, has announced that henceforth candidates for high school positions must be certificated by the state Department of Instruction in at least two subjects. The only exceptions made were in such specialized fields as music and home economics.

RUMANIA NEAR CRISIS DUE TO OIL EXPORT BAN

Bucharest, Feb. 22 (AP) — Rumania ordered her already large military preparations speeded up today following authoritative reports that Germany was challenging the government's ban on export of aviation gasoline to the reich.

Dr. Karl Clodius, German economic expert, is expected here Monday for showdown conversations to insist on full delivery of Germany's 1940 quota of oil and oil products. Meanwhile, the government ordered many of 300,000 reservists originally called for March 1 to start reporting immediately to concentration centers, it was learned.

Effective March 1, Rumania will have 1,600,000 men under arms — virtually general mobilization without being so labelled.

Reservists on Move

Railways now are jammed with reservists moving toward frontiers and with long trainloads of tanks, armored cars and artillery.

The arrival of Doctor Clodius will coincide with the start of Rumanian trade conversations here with Italy, understood also to be seeking a share of this country's oil exports.

Germany, it was said, will challenge a Rumanian ban on shipments of high test aviation gasoline to the reich — a measure which Rumania was reported to have taken to placate Great Britain and France.

The German attitude toward Rumania and all southeastern Europe will depend on the outcome of Clodius' talks, informed quarters predicted.

It was understood that a government decree banning the fuel which Germany needs for her machines of war had been issued — this in direct contradiction to a recent oil export agreement with Germany.

Allied pressure in gaining this Rumanian show of resistance to Germany's economic overtures was said to have consisted of deliberate delays in delivery of cotton, wool, jute and iron ore to Rumania, confronting her industries with serious losses.

Allies Given Edge

The Rumanian ban was regarded in London as giving the allies the edge in the competition for Rumanian oil.

Both the British and the French have pointedly informed Bucharest that they might be compelled to reconsider their guarantees of Rumania against attack if King Carol's regime favored Germany on oil.

The importance of Rumanian oil to the German war machine is reported to have been stressed by German trade envoys in a declaration that increased shipments are "a matter of life and death" to the reich and that Germany would be compelled "to seek other methods" if Rumania failed to fulfill her commitments.

Rumania is under agreement to ship about 30 per cent of her 1940 production to Germany.

RUSSIANS PLACE PRESSURE ALONG ENTIRE FINN LINE

Helsinki, Feb. 22 (AP).—The Soviet Russian strategy of smashing at both extremities of the Mannerheim line while maintaining active pressure along its whole length, emphasized today the Finnish problem of defense with thin-spread forces everywhere numerically inferior.

After concentrating near the western end of the line on the Karelian isthmus and forcing Finnish withdrawal to new positions, the Red army was reported to have thrown two divisions (apparently 30,000 to 35,000 men) against the Taipale sector, eastern terminus of the fortified zone.

The Finns said that despite strong artillery and aircraft support, the attackers were hurled back, and denied at the same time that the Russians had captured Koivisto, the line's big "anchor" battery on the Gulf of Finland.

Russian Claims

(A Russian communique declared "nothing of importance" occurred at the front, but that 176 Finnish defensive fortifications had been taken in the past three days, "including the Koivisto fortress area."

(Soviet planes "acted against the enemy's troops and military objectives," the communique said, and 16 Finnish planes were shot down in combat.)

A blizard, the first this month, was counted as a defensive asset by the Finns, who repeated their story of heavy Russian casualties and light losses for themselves.

February normally is a bitter, snowy month in this region, and the worsening of the weather is described as lending new heart to the hard-pressed Finns.

Despite the weather, Soviet bombers continued to raid Finnish cities and towns Wednesday.

AP Chief Under Fire

Wade Werner, chief of the Associated Press staff in Finland, was caught in one of these raids at a railroad station 50 miles west of Sortavala.

The town, unnamed for military reason, already was a jumble of wrecked and burned buildings from five night raids when he arrived Wednesday, Werner said.

Nevertheless, he had hardly stepped from the platform to a cafe when the bombers returned.

"It seemed incredible, after all the damage they had done the night before," he said, "but I took shelter in the woods with some townspeople. We had spent most of the previous night jumping out of the train and standing in the snow during similar alarms."

A half-hour later, the clear signal was given, but a new alarm sounded almost immediately as 35 bombers appeared.

After the second dash to the woods, Werner said he resolved to run no more. So for the successive returns of the bombers he alternately ducked under freight cars and crawled into culverts with other train passengers.

Flashes of Life

By The Associated Press

GOOD SHOT

Fulton, Mo. — Burton Moore pointed his gun to the ceiling and pulled the trigger, ending the first half of the basketball game between Westminster and Tarkio colleges. A dead guinea fowl fell to the playing floor. The bird had been placed in the rafters by pranksters, who released it with a string as Moore fired the blank cartridge.

ON WITH THE OLD

New Wilmington, Pa.—Westminster college professors are back again to the system of marking papers "A," "B," or "C," replacing the numerical method, under which grades were marked from "minus two" equivalent to 0 to "44") to "three" (90 to 100). Parents—and others—couldn't figure out what the numbers meant.

DRIED UP

Oklahoma City—The state capitol building is bone dry now. F. C. Stewart, manager of the capitol cafeteria, quit handling 3.2 beer because sales had dropped to "not enough to pay for icing it." State employes once drank 30 cases a day, but Gov. Leon C. Phillips banned drinking in the building. Oklahoma still has prohibition.) He didn't mention 3.2 beer, but the employes are playing it safe.

WHERE'S THE FIRE

Twin Falls, Idaho—I. G. Prescott pulled his garbage truck to the curb when he heard sirens. Firemen halted alongside the truck. The garbage was on fire, but the firemen got it out.

IT'S STILL "NO"!

Swansea, Ill.—The new fire engine will be an "orphan" unless the city fathers can provide it a home soon. Contrary to the wishes of citizens who defeated a $10,000 bond issue to establish a fire department, the council ordered a pumper for delivery March 1. Then it re-asked voters to approve a fire station. They defeated it a second time.

PAVING PUZZLER

Bellevue, Neb.—W. R. Patrick, attorney for the village of Bellevue, can't make it out. The village has $29,500 outstanding in paving bonds. But, Patrick says, there isn't a single yard of paving.

A new electric lamp, powerful as a 1,000 watt bulb, but only half the size of a short lead pencil, has been perfected in U. S. experimental laboratories.

Co-Operative Enterprise Saves New England Town

Ware, Mass., Feb. 22 (AP) — The unconquerable spirit of a town that wouldn't be licked found work for idle hands to do and saved this community from extinction.

A thousand persons — housewives, merchants, workmen — stockholders all in a co-operative mill-owning venture instituted less than three years ago when Ware was threatened with becoming a ghost town, assembled Wednesday night to hear just how successful their unique, courageous enterprise was.

"We have between two and a half to three times as many people working today as the Otis company employed in the cotton textile industry during the last ten years it was here," said Minot C. Wood, banker and head of the co-operative. "Our payrolls show an even larger percentage of increase. If no major contingencies materialize, we have every right to hope that we can pay some dividend before our third year is over."

The Otis mills — bread and butter to Ware — were sold in October, 1937. The machinery was purchased by southern industrialists and the town, with 1,700 of its workers out of jobs, faced a dismal fate. But reaction came swiftly. Wood negotiated a deal for the purchase of the mills, water and power rights for $50,000.

Contributions began pouring in immediately and within a day $20,000 was raised. In 11 days the full $50,000 was in the coffers, mostly from individual purchase of stock shares at $5 each.

Then new industries were attracted to the site and now 17 different ones occupy the old textile mills. Two year's taxes have been paid, all debts have been wiped out, including a $10,000 loss resulting from the hurricane and floods of 1938, and the town is busy — there are few idle hands in Ware today.

And over every town entrance hangs a sign:

"Ware, the town that can't be licked."

FREIGHTER SHELLED

Madrid, Feb. 22 (AP)—The fishing boat Milan arrived at La Coruna, on Spain's northwest coast, today with 23 survivors of the 4,760-ton Netherlands freighter, Tara, which sank off Cape Finisterre, Spain, Wednesday after being shelled. Dispatches from La Coruna quoted the survivors as saying that a lifeboat with 12 other crew members was missing. (Amsterdam dispatches reported that the Tara's crew, numbered at 34 men, had been rescued).

Denis Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia was the first American Catholic Bishop in the Philippines.

Applications for patents, filed in the Washington office during 1939, totalled 91,163.

SHOCKS WRECK FOUR VILLAGES

Istanbul, Feb. 22 (AP).—Four villages in the Kaisari region of Turkey were reported today to have been leveled by a series of continuing earth shocks with a loss of 70 lives and more than 50 persons injured.

Shocks also were felt at Ankara and Andana.

Eighteen quakes were felt in quick succession late Wednesday in and around the town of Kaisari in central Anatolia, Asiatic Turkey, and temblors were reported continuing at noon today.

Tens of thousands of cattle were said to have perished in the devastation of the villages and in stampedes caused by the shocks.

Peasants became panic-stricken, fearing a repetition of the December disaster in which about 50,000 persons were killed by quakes, exposure and subsequent floods.

Half of Russia's coal and half her salt is produced by the Soviet Ukraine. That district also produces half of Russia's steel and three-fifths of its pig-iron.

Girl Takes 'Trousseau' Of Household Goods to Wed Mining Engineer

Philadelphia, Feb. 22 (AP).—With a "trousseau" of household equipment and an English-Spanish dictionary, a Philadelphia girl is on her way to the Chilean Andes where she will marry a mining engineer from Lehighton.

The girl is Miss Frances Eloise Ulrich, who is aboard the Grace liner Santa Lucia bound for Valparaiso. Waiting there with a minister next Monday will be John Troxell, of Lehighton. He proposed to Miss Ulrich—and she accepted—while on a visit to the United States early last year.

Then he got orders to report back to his job as mining engineer for the Andes copper company in June. He wanted to take along a bride, but there was no place to put her.

So Troxell sailed alone and Miss Ulrich waited. Recently he sent word that a house was ready, and she made arrangements to sail.

The couple will live 100 miles back from the seacoast in a settlement where comfort is what you bring in.

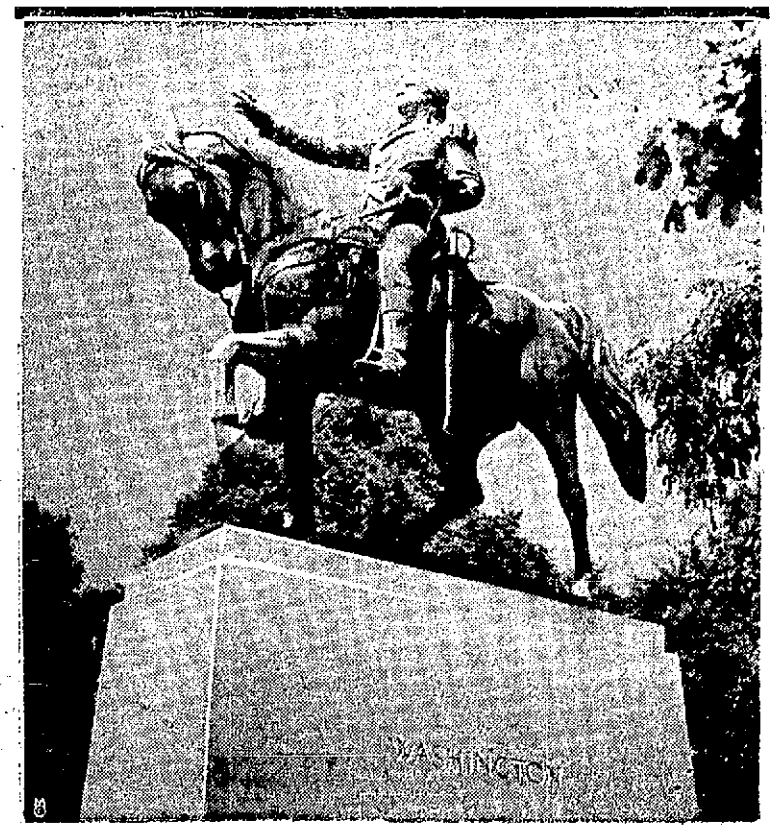
MRS. WIEDOEFT DIES

Los Angeles, Feb. 22 (AP).—Mrs. Anna E. Wiedoeft, 75, died Wednesday without knowing her son, Rudy Wiedoeft, famous saxophonist, died Sunday. She was stricken with a heart ailment Saturday—the same day Rudy became ill in New York—and was not told of his death.



First In The Hearts Of His "Countrymen" . . . .

Well may we all take time out to pay reverence to the memory of America's first President! George Washington was a living example of the best in leadership, courage and love of liberty. On this occasion—the anniversary of his birth, we join our voice with the voices of all his countrymen in hoping that the ideals he set forth will ever be maintained. Among other things George Washington advocated thrift and economy.

WESTERN FRONT PATROL CLASHES MORE NUMEROUS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

Increasing raids and patrol clashes have been marking activities in the western theatre of war in France, indicating both nervous tension and a significant curiosity about the other fellow's affairs.

They are harbingers of the not far distant spring and fighting weather. The combatants are starting early to get set for grim eventualities.

These miniature battles generally are dismissed in the official communiques with a flip of the hand, if indeed they are mentioned at all.

Yet raids are of great importance, frequently spelling the difference between victory and defeat in a major engagement.

Raids have various purposes but ordinarily are conducted with the object of learning disposition of enemy forces or surveying positions. They are the vital forerunners of either offensive or defensive operations.

Purpose of Raids

The great majority are for purposes of "identification." That is, the raiders are after the identification marks on the uniform of at least one man, showing what unit he belongs to.

It's by means of such identifications of regiments and divisions that enemy concentrations are learned. It's this way:

If your raids show that a lot of additional units have just come into the enemy positions opposite you, and you know that these units were miles away only a few hours ago, then it is clear that the enemy is concentrating troops in your sector and getting ready to attack.

Most raids are conducted by small parties under cloak of night. It is a hazardous and often hair-raising adventure. The moment a movement is seen by the enemy all hades breaks loose. No-man's land is turned into a zone of livid explosions and flying steel. In all probability that marks journey's end for the raiding party.

If, however, the raiders reach their objective, they proceed with their task as rapidly and as quietly as possible. It is a job for bare hands or knives if feasible, for the discharge of a rifle or pistol would bring a host about their ears. Sometimes the raiders are able to take prisoners back with them, but most always they get just the uniforms.

Prisoners captured in raids or in battle are subjected to all sorts of tricks to get them to talk. Typical was the case of the young German flying officer who was shot down and brought wounded to the British advance hospital where I was ill.

A British officer who had the appearance of a German and spoke the language like a native was bandaged up as though he were terribly wounded and placed in the bed next to the prisoner. In a few minutes the Briton, who was a clever actor, whispered weakly across to the other.

I heard the Englishman represent himself as also being a German airman, and he gave his squadron and other details. Soon he had the wounded boy talking eagerly. And unwittingly imparting valuable military information.

That's the sort of thing going on now in the western theater. It means they're getting ready for business.

COMMAND APPEARANCE FOR HEIFETZ—"By special request" of his two children, whose visits with him are cut short by his concert engagements, Violinist Jascha Heifetz has a family party at the Heifetz home in Redding, Conn. The children are Robert, 7, and Josepha, 8. Mrs. Heifetz is the former Florence Vidor, a movie actress.

Officiates at 529th Military Funeral

Master Sergeant W. L. Baldwin, 149 West Market street, York, chief trumpeter, Pennsylvania brigade, Sons of Veterans Reserve, recently officiated at his 529th military funeral. All of these funerals were held since August 12, 1918, and represented veterans of all wars. Some of the funerals were conducted at the National cemetery here.

Mr. Baldwin is an honorary member of Steffy camp, Gettysburg, he served in the United States cavalry with the Mexican expeditionary forces.

Both Mr. Baldwin's grandfathers served in the Civil war. William Harry Baldwin served with the 106th reserve volunteers and Milton B. Elder was with Jenkins' second Virginia cavalry.

HERD GETS TRADE MARK

"Walker-Field" is the newly-selected herd prefix name which will be used by Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Washington, D. C., in registering the purebred Holstein dairy cattle at her farm in Fairfield. Exclusive use of this trade mark for identifying this herd has been certified and recorded by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, Brattleboro, Vermont.

TRIES TO USE HIS LOVE LETTERS 2D TIME

Chicago, Feb. 22 (AP)—The love letters Blaine Johnson sent to his wife, Lela, in an effort to regain her affection carried ardent and tender messages but the wrong dates.

Two weeks ago when Johnson sought a divorce the judge suggested he patch up the quarrel and renew courtship of his wife. Johnson began sending her letters, one a day.

Mrs. Johnson complained in court Wednesday the idea left her cold. The envelopes, she explained, were fresh and recently postmarked but the letters were the ones he had sent her 15 years ago. He dug them out of her trunk, she said.

The postoffice department maintained 11,662 star routes in 1939, requiring travel of 189,504,715 miles per year at 9 cents per mile.

DOCTORS stress remaining in bed until the body temperature is normal. Sound advice.

You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to build back body strength right away to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.

GOERING AND WOOD SEEKING AIR SUPREMACY

(By the Associated Press)

As the approach of spring quickens the war pulse of Europe, the Pickwickian son of a Protestant minister and a rotund soldier descendant of Bismarck, the Iron Chancellor, fence for supremacy of the skies.

For weapons they use two-ton bombing planes and swift fighting ships.

These two extraordinary figures — five foot, spectacle-wearing Sir Kingsley Wood, British air minister, and corpulent, uniform-loving Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German air minister and "iron Fist" of the nazis — hold the power to release the wholesale death and destruction which Europe has fearfully awaited since the war started.

Wood, the English businessman politician and Goering, the swashbuckling German militarist have in common one thing — determinations that each other's air force shall not dominate the air.

Son of Minister

The 67-year-old Wood was born the son of a Wesleyan minister, educated at Oxford and practiced law as a solicitor.

Just 20 years Wood's junior, Goering was born the son of a Bavarian official, indirectly a descendant of Bismarck, Count Zeppelin of airship fame and Goethe, the great German poet. A student in the cadet corps at Karlsruhe, he was fighting in the World war at 21.

The quiet, studious Wood methodically climbed the intricate ladder of British politics with hard work.

Goering hitched his political wagon to Hitler and fell to the depths with the ill-fated beer cellar putsch of 1923 only to rise meteorically as the nazis swept into power during the depression years.

Wood achieved fame as the "businessman" of the British cabinet when as postmaster-general he yanked the vast British postal system out of the red ink and made it show a profit.

With his hands tucked under his coattails — which gave him a distinct resemblance to Dickens' immortal Mr. Pickwick — Wood used to heckle slyly his colleagues by pointing to his department's yearly turnover of $4,500,000,000, as indication that his job was the most important in the cabinet.

Goering Succeeded Richthofen

In the face of growing nazi air strength, Prime Minister Chamberlain turned to his "cabinet businessman" to build up the royal air force by appointing him air minister in May, 1938. With his meticulous methods, Wood accomplished his task in less than two years despite an almost complete lack of starting knowledge on aviation.

While Wood was working behind the scenes in English politics during World war days, Goering was fighting as a lieutenant with the Kaiser's forces.

He rose from an aerial observer to succeed the legendary Baron Manfred Von Richthofen as squadron leader with a record of 20 planes shot down when the war ended.

THE GRAF

Scranton, Pa. (AP) — The "Graf Spee" is on exhibition at the police motorcycle garage. The name of the ill-fated German "pocket" battleship was painted on the bow of the rowboat stored at the garage for emergency use, shortly after the warship was scuttled.

NATURE HELPS

LABOR HERO

Lugano, Switzerland (AP)—Italian-born Giovanni Martini was the oldest pensioned railroad worker in Switzerland when, at 97, he died in Lugano recently, but that was not the main reason for the crowds that came to his funeral and the long obituaries in the Swiss and Italian press.

It was because Martini was the last survivor of the pioneer workmen who carved the first great railroad tunnel through the solid rock of Switzerland's Alps.

It took eight years—from 1872 to 1880—to push through the great St. Gothard tunnel whose 14,998 meters (48,927 feet) of track, now electrified, still stands with the longest tunnels of the world.

Boulder dam, during 1939, earned a gross income of $4,321,000.

GEN. WRIGHT, COUNTY NATIVE, AIDED SHERMAN

(The scenes showing Sherman march to the sea in "Gone With the Wind" will have added significance for Adams countians when it is realized that General William W Wright a native of that county planned a march for Sherman)

The following memoir of General Wright appeared in the proceedings of the American Society of Civil Engineers of which he was an earnest and prominent member and which he so largely assisted in making the best authority in the profession on this side of the Atlantic.

William Wierman Wright was born July 27 1824 at York Springs Adams county Pennsylvania He came of a Quaker family well known in that part of the state He was educated at the schools of the neighborhood and finished his education at the academy at Gettysburg under the charge of General Herman Haupt C E He began his engineer career in 1847 under Samuel W Mifflin who was in charge of the mountain division of the Pennsylvania railroad extending from Jacks Narrows to the summit of the Allegheny mountains He continued until 1854 in the service of the Pennsylvania railroad in different grades up to principal assistant engineer in charge of the western division of the main line. While in this service he supervised the construction of the Indiana branch and the erection of the freight depot at Pittsburgh In 1855 he became the chief engineer of the Memphis and Charleston railroad In 1857 he was engaged in the service of the Honduras Interoceanic railroads under the direction of John C Trautwine C E being in Honduras from May 1857 to May 1858

Sent to England

Returning to New York at that time he was sent to England in the service of the Honduras company and travelled extensively in Europe returning to the United States in 1859 He was subsequently connected with the Waynesburg branch of the Pennsylvania railroad up to the beginning of the war when he entered the service of the government and was connected with the military railroad department to the close of the war In this capacity his services were of the most valuable character

He was engaged at Washington and Alexandria and was in charge of the Acquia Creek railroad building extensive wharves at that point and in 1864 was military superintendent of transportation at Baltimore In 1864 he was chief engineer of the military railroads in the division of the Mississippi having the appointment also of colonel of United States Volunteers

He reorganized and had charge of the Military Railroad Construction corps which did very effective service at Chattanooga Nashville and other points At the close of 1864 he was ordered by General Sherman to Savannah where he arrived with his construction corps of 1200 men January 1st 1864 and was put in charge of the military railroad work in that vicinity He was present with General Sherman at the time of the negotiations with General Johnston which closed the war

Other Activities

In the change of the work of this Military Railroad Construction corps during the war General Wright exhibited remarkable ability and his operations were of the greatest advantage to the United States Army The corps was disbanded May 15 1864 and in 1866 he left the military service of the government and became general superintendent of the eastern division of the Kansas Pacific railway exchanging this position in 1867 for that of chief engineer of the same company in charge of the surveys for the proposed extension of the road to the Pacific coast He pushed these surveys with energy until 1868 when he became connected with the Kansas and Missouri Bridge company at Leavenworth

He was connected subsequently with the Chicago and Atchison Bridge over the Missouri river and with many other railroad works in the west

In 1870 he became chief engineer of the Shenandoah Valley railroad in Virginia and supervised the surveys for that railroad He returned to Philadelphia in 1874 when he engaged in general engineering practice

In 1879 and 1880 he was a member of the commission of engineers convened in the city of Panama by M de Lesseps to examine and report upon the proposed route for the inter-oceanic canal

It will be seen that few American engineers have had a more active or energetic career and the constant professional engagements confided to General Wright up to the later years of his life prove that his engineering ability was well organized

General Wright became a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers March 3rd 1875

General Wright died in Philadelphia on Thursday night March 8 1882 The Times of that city spoke of his war record thus

He was a particular friend of General Sherman who admired his dash and fine executive abilities In Sherman's march to the sea General Wright had command of a large force of men detailed for pioneer duty and was often brought in close contact with guerillas and portions of the Confederate armies In the Army of the Potomac he had special charge of the construction and protection of burned bridges a work to which by reason of his dashing bravery he was especially well fitted At the close of the war he built several bridges and various public works He had charge of the plans and construction of the Kansas and Missouri bridge at Leavenworth and the bridge at Atchison Kansas

Three Lose Pleas To Escape Chair

Harrisburg Feb 22 (AP)—Only the hand of Governor James can save three men from walking the last mile from death row to the electric chair in Rockview penitentiary a few minutes after midnight Sunday

The board of pardons refused Wednesday to lend its weight to the execution of William H Yeager Montour county farmer Andrew Schurtz Shamokin WPA worker and William Kelly Philadelphia negro The governor seldom ignores the board's recommendations and replieves a condemned man

Yeager must die for shooting State Policeman John E Fessler summoned by one of Yeager's 11 children to break up a family quarrel The condemned man pleaded his only shot went wild and that another trooper's bullet killed Fessler during a pistol battle in Yeagers dimly lit kitchen

Schurtz was convicted of shooting in the back Lieut Edwin C Fisher National Guard officer and foreman on a WPA project His attorney contended Schurtz disturbed by financial reverses and inability to maintain his wife for about his usual order and a 12 year old son fired in desperation when Fisher threatened loss of his job

Kelly was condemned to die for killing Henry Berry Philadelphia policeman during a jewelry store robbery

The board also refused to free Mrs Elva Hartman Sleighter serving an indeterminate sentence at the Muncy Industrial Home for Women for a part in the fatal beating of little Jean Seville left in the care of Mrs Sleighter and her husband Glenn by a children's aid society

Mrs Sleighter pleaded to be sent back to her parents Franklin county home to care for her own two children Her husband is serving a life sentence in the Eastern penitentiary

CENSORSHIP OF MAIL INVOLVES U. S. AND ALLIES

Washington Feb 22 (AP)—A virtual deadlock over censorship of American mails has developed between the State department and Great Britain and France with one incident after another helping complicate the situation

It was learned Wednesday night that British marines with fixed bayonets brought about the first seizure of trans Atlantic airmail at Bermuda on January 18

Capt Charles A Lorbet of Baltimore commander of Pan American airways planes flying between the United States and Lisbon had refused to surrender the mails to British censors until the ship arrived at the island of Bermuda

Censorship Continued

Authoritative sources at London attributed the incident to a conflict of principle and said

You can't expect Britain to relax a principle

Lorbet's protest apparently was the display of bayonets for despite a prompt protest by United States officials custody of the mails continued at Bermuda Last week 1970 pounds of American mail were taken off one clipper ship

Secretary Hull hinted at a recent press conference that if the principle did not cease Bermuda might be passed up as a clipper stop

Mail carried from the United States by boat also is under censorship Allied ammunition Mail to Northern Europe generally is sent to Gibraltar and Marseilles for Scandinavian nations it goes via Scotland for Baltic ports at Weymouth England Haifa Palestine is a censorship point for the Near East

It is understood that there are other censorship headquarters in Britain and France and that mails destined for the United States also are censored at these cities

Take Mail From Liner

When the United States liner Manhattan arrived at New York Wednesday night from Italy her captain said that the British removed 559 sacks of mail at Gibraltar on the eastbound trip and held the ship 27 hours On the return voyage she was held nine hours

The American government admits the right of a belligerent to take such articles from the American mails if the ship or plane carrying them puts into a British port voluntarily The State department has tried to ease the way for the trans Atlantic airmail by ruling that parcel post and certain types of checks money orders etc would not be accepted in the airmail to Europe

The program embraces study of state laws and local regulations study of methods used in their enforcement and cooperation with distillers and brewers in helping educate the public to true temperance

Pennsylvania is the fourth state in which such committees have been established recently The others are Connecticut Maryland and Michigan

MAD DOG KILLED

Pittsburgh, Feb. 22 (AP)—In an impassioned four-hour chase that had touches of the old "wild west" days, a score of policemen and some 50 civilians ran down and killed Wednesday night a dog, believed mad, which bit 18 persons. More than 50 shots were fired at the animal as it led pursuers up and down icy, hilly streets in the Overbrook and Carrick residential sections.

ALLIGATOR BAIT

HIGHWAY DROPS IN

Mechanicsburg, Pa., Feb. 22 (AP).—Workmen today hauled rock to fill in a hole, big enough to hold a fair-sized truck, in the middle of the Williams Grove road, about three miles south of here. Harvey Hoover, road caretaker, said the 10-by-20-foot hole is only about 35 feet from the site of two similar cave-ins two years ago.

SWEDEN DECIDES TO DEFEND LAND AGAINST PLANES

Stockholm, Feb. 22 AP)—Swedish military authorities, it was announced today, have issued new instructions to all anti-aircraft units to fire on any military planes flying over Swedish territory.

The orders followed the bombing of Pajala by Soviet Russian planes Wednesday which brought indignant demands in the Swedish press that a protest to Moscow be followed by insistence on compensation and assurances against a repetition.

Military experts continued investigations of the bombing.

Under government orders to protest Wednesday's aerial bombardment of the town five miles from the Finnish border, Vilhelm Assarsson, minister to Moscow, was received at the Kremlin late Wednesday by the Russian premier-foreign commissar, Vyacheslaff Molotoff.

"Sweden never was the object of such serious violation of her neutrality either during the last war or the present one," declared the conservative newspaper, Svenska Dagbladet.

"If the bombing was unintentional, steps must be taken to avoid repetition of such mistakes."

No injuries to any of the 3,000 residents of Pajala were reported, but a number of buildings were demolished. Townsfolk said 34 bombs were explosive and 100 others of an incendiary type.

The bombs were believed to have been intended for nearby Finnish territory, but the incident brought predictions that the Swedish "activist" movement for vigorous aid to Finland would gain new impetus.

The chief of the Swedish Finland committee, returning from a visit to Finland, announced Wednesday night that recruiting of Swedish volunteers to help the Finns against Russia would be intensified.

Sweden has refused officially to send troops to Finland.

BENNY'S TO BLAME

Norristown, Pa., Feb. 22 (AP)—The finger of suspicion points to Benny, a five-year-old buck, for the mass exodus of deer from Elmwood park zoo. The fugitives were restored to their pen Wednesday after leading police and volunteer firemen through backyards and vales. Soon after being returned to the zoo, Benny was seen to lift the gate latch with his antlers, prompting Park Superintendent S. Cameron Corson to the conclusion: "Benny's to blame."

Elkton Powder Blast Kills 2

Elkton, Md., Feb. 22 (AP) — Federal and county officials opened an investigation today into a powder factory blast that killed two men Wednesday and sent 15 other persons to a hospital with burns.

The federal government investigated since the plant was engaged in the manufacture of explosives for government use.

Meantime, Dr. J. B. Slicer, of Rising Sun, Maryland, Cecil county medical officer, indicated an inquest into the deaths of Edward Kneese, 35, and Charles Gatchell, 32, might be delayed until next week because J. S. Decker, general manager of the plant, Triumph Explosives, Inc., was not in the city.

Kneese was killed instantly by the explosion which occurred in a powder magazine, and wrecked three adjoining frame structures. Gatchell died three hours later in a hospital. The 15 other victims suffered burns and shock.

TALLYHO!

Mercer, Pa., Feb. 22 (AP).—Here's one for the fox hunters, who are holding their national holiday today: Clarence Wuzuik, Lackawannock township farmer, caught a red fox with his bare hands. Reynard was exhausted, however, having been cornered by Wuzuik's dogs after an all-day chase. The farmer decided to keep the fox as a pet.

U. S. INCREASES PAYMENTS TO WHEAT FARMERS

Harrisburg, Feb. 22 (AP).—Wheat farmers who take part in the federal government's parity program next summer will get an extra dime from Uncle Sam for every bushel they produce.

That's the amount fixed by the United States Department of Agriculture for this summer's crop. Last year, the first under the plan, it was 31 cents a bushel, and 33,612 Pennsylvania farmers already have been paid $739,459. About 300 of 400 additional wheat producers still remain to be paid off.

The plan is a means of securing to the commercial wheat grower—roughly, those who plant more than 10 acres—a "parity" price, or fair return when it is considered what the farmer pays for other goods. The five major crops are included in the program—wheat, cotton, corn, rice and tobacco. The A.A.A. has 225 millions to tap for this purpose.

Calculation of Parity

The federal experts have excluded tobacco from parity payments in 1939 and 1940, however, because they figured tobacco prices actually received by the farmers were more nearly on a par with what they have to pay for other goods. Seventy-five per cent of "parity" is considered good.

The "parity" is calculated with the 1909-14 period as a base, because that was one five-year stretch when the farmer was getting about as much out of his crops as he was putting out for shoes, etc.

The plan, briefly, is to "bring the farm income more nearly in line with the things he must buy."

In Pennsylvania, more than 90 per cent of all farmers who were given wheat acreage allotments—told how many acres they should plant—have received parity payments. Their average wheat acreage was around 11, says the state agricultural conservation committee.

Soil Building Practices

The parity payments on wheat were on top of the nine cents per bushel received for planting the number of acres the government, through state and county committees, allotted growers.

Some wheat farmers chose to take their payments for using soil building practices, instead of getting an acreage allotment. They are paid for doing either one. Most of those who raise more than 10 acres, however, go into the allotment program.

As for soil building practices, the state agricultural conservation committee says the machinery will be ready by next week for taking applications for lime and superphosphate. The lime may be used on both pasture and crop lands, if the county committee approves. The superphosphate is for pasture lands only. The distribution of the products is designed primarily to recover abandoned or fallow pasture.

All Not in A.A.A.

The materials are not exactly free, but they can be obtained in a painless way. The farmer pays a small handling fee when it's delivered. The balance of the cost is deducted from his payments from the government at the season's end, due him either for planting an allotted acreage or building up his soil by government-suggested methods.

All Pennsylvania farmers, of course, do not join in the conservation program of the A.A.A., but the number is increasing annually. In 1939 more than 55,000 farmers took part in some way or another, and shared in a federal windfall of approximately $3,000,000.

HOLLYWOOD

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—I'm reading about Shirley Temple in Bermuda and suddenly I'm thinking about elephants which don't grow in Bermuda.

The news pictures showed Shirley smelling a lily or eating an onion, or maybe it was the other way around, or maybe the cameramen had a new idea. But all I can see, thinking of Shirley in Bermuda, is Shirley and her elephant.

Accustomed as we in Hollywood are to seeing elephants—pink and green and frolicsome blue ones—I doubt if Shirley has ever seen hers. Shirley's mamma has, though, and Shirley's mamma isn't fond of it. She's afraid that some day that pesky critter is going to rar' back and swat her little precious. Mrs. Temple doesn't think of it as an elephant. She labels it Fame.

* * *

But I like the elephantine parallel. That old story, remember? About the guy who went in training to lift an elephant. Started with a young one, lifted it every day, figured he could grow in strength with the beastie, and finally wow the circus fans. Something went wrong, but it was a nice idea.

In a peanut shell, that's the Temple theory about handling this elephant called Fame. And I'll go on record right now that it's going to work. It's working already.

Here's this curly-top kid, nine years old. Before she was four, she's had a preliminary tussle or two with the animal. It was a little elephant then, and Shirley got used to it.

If she can remember her life at three, Shirley must know that once on a while people turned in passing for a second look. She must remember that many strangers sighed and gurgled, "Cute child!" or "ISNT she DARLING?"

Then pictures, and the problem of Shirley's hat-size. The Temples, papa and mamma, tackled it hard. They made it a rule that Shirley shouldn't be ogled and petted. They shielded her from the barrage of Oh's and Ah's. It was a good rule even if it didn't work. Shirley has had more well-meant compliments from well-meaning people than the average child could take. But Shirley isn't average.

Adding inches, pounds, years, Shirley learned to read. Even before that, she could pick out her name on billboards. When she could read what went with the name—adjectives—the novelty had worn thin.

* * *

When Shirley was attending her first previews, I thought some unkind thought about these Temples who talked about "protecting" Shirley and yet exposed her to mob applause. I remember one occasion when Shirley had to be hoisted on a press agent's shoulders to get her through the mob, preceded by shouts of "Make way for the queen!" Ever been seasick? That's how I felt. But the Temples had the right idea. If Shirley could get accustomed to crowds early enough, she could take 'em or leave 'em.

So the elephant grew bigger, but so did Shirley. Most of us howled at this "quiet" little Temple trek across country now ending in Bermuda. Just as we thought, the crowds didn't know it was "quiet." But I'll bet it hasn't hurt Shirley. Even if she doesn't believe her mother's current "line"—that it's Shirley's hard work the crowds are cheering—it hasn't hurt her.

What might hurt her some day, of course, is for the elephant to say bye-bye. But he isn't going to. Every picture she makes points up more clearly that Shirley Temple is going to be an actress—child and woman—for a good long time.

Output of federal fish hatcheries in 1939 exceeded 6 billion eggs.

Reddy CONFUCIUS Kilowatt say:

"George Washington rich man and have many servants, but today poor man have more servants than always to be revered Father of his country, if he use Electric Service."

RIGHT! "Confucius" Kilowatt! Although he was one of the wealthiest aristocrats of his day and had a score of servants to do his bidding, George Washington never knew the convenience of even an electric light, to say nothing of the hundreds of other electrical devices that enter into the life of the humblest citizen today.

The greatest advance the world has ever made in better living, industrial development and business enterprise, has been in the past half century — the electrical era. Before that progress was slow.

Today cheap, dependable Electric Service has revolutionized our business, industrial and domestic lives. An army of "servants" leap to your command at any hour of the day or night, and wise old "Confucious" Kilowatt say:

"For job to be done, without hitch,
Wise man turn electric switch."
